While vacationing this summer, a must have product to pack is our Sensorielle oil with three white flowers. The multi-use oil from Paris can be used on the face, body, and hair. Using it assures you twenty-four hour hydration.

Sensorielle contains high concentrations of Argon, sweet almond, and hazelnut.

After your post pool or beach shower, massage Sensorielle oil into your still-moist skin. In the evening, comb Sensorielle through your hair and pull it back to achieve a sleek, modern look. Ronnie and Patrick Ales

I have recently returned from a quick trip to Paris (doing that civic duty thing and supporting the direct Delta direct flight!) where I had a great time, enjoying lovely weather, some delicious meals and excellent (though pricey) shopping. The highlight of the trip, however, was meeting Patrick Ales, the legendary founder and CEO of the Phyto group, whose products we have so successfully used here in Studio Booth. Almost eighty, Monsieur Ales entertained me in his salon just off the Champs-Elysses. He gave me a detailed tour of the spacious premises and it was fascinating to see a Parisian salon in full swing, though it made me realize how lucky we are at Studio Booth to have such an excellent cooling and air extraction system. Those oh-so-elegant French ladies were sweltering in high 90 degree temperatures, with absolutely no air-conditioning at all!

Monsieur Ales then walked me through the process that he developed in a small studio in Provence, utilizing only botanicals and organic substances and I have a renewed respect for the care that he and his company take in the development of each new product. We are not always able to have access to the entire line because of trade restrictions, but after my visit, I feel sure that we will be receiving extra special attention from his marketing team.

Walking through the streets of Paris after this once-in-lifetime encounter, I was struck by a number of things: the unfailing flair for fashion is everywhere... sometimes outrageous, often subdued, but always chic. The hair color could use a lot of help, however! All in all, a refreshing break in one of the world's most beautiful cities.

“Friends have invited us for a barbecue next weekend and we need to bring a covered dish. Everything they do is over the top, so bringing Grandma’s potato salad is out of the question. Help!

The bottom line...it’s still a barbecue, so take something appropriate. I have the perfect recommendation for you; Northern Thai BBQ wings. This recipe is from my chef buddy, Rich Rosenthal. Most of you know his wife, Cherry, from Trader Joe’s. I love cooking with them, along with Noi Chaisri, who owns “Thai Me Up” on Carson Street (check it out!) We have made a lot of great Thai recipes together. This is probably my favorite. It looks and tastes amazing!

Combine spices and toss to coat chicken wings. Marinate overnight. Grill over medium heat for 5-7 minutes.

Ingredients:

- ¼ c. salt
- 1 c. lemongrass, finely chopped
- 32 cloves garlic, minced
- 2 tsp. white pepper
- 1 c. cilantro, chopped
- 4 tsp. turmeric
- 6 lbs. chicken wings
